Dr Monir Hossain Moni is a Research Professor and director for Program on Global Japan Studies under the Division of Asian & International Affairs of the Asia Pacific Institute for Global Studies (APIGS) in Dhaka, the capital city of Bangladesh. Besides his higher degrees awarded by the two Tokyo-based Japanese universities – Hitotsubashi University and Waseda University – under the Japanese Government MEXT (Monbukagakushō) Scholarship Program during 7 years, he held a number of international research scholarships and fellowships. Professor Moni specializes in the broadly defined field of Asia-Pacific global cross-disciplinary policy/development studies with an area concentration on Northeast Asia, intrinsically encompassing Japan – its diplomacy, foreign policy and international relations, global political economy of trade and investment as well as this country’s role of sustainable development aid cooperation with a rising Asia in the “Asian century” of a fast-globalizing but ever-challenging world. Solely with his personal capacity and initiative, he has accomplished a series of front-line and policy-relevant research projects by continuous successes in receiving competitive funding from Japan's leading grant-making organizations. Dealing with his interest and expertise, Dr Moni has extensively and valuably contributed to international refereed/peer-reviewed journals including Japan Studies Review, Japan Studies Association Journal, International Journal of China Studies, APC アジア太平洋研究 (APC Journal of Asian Pacific Studies), Asia-Pacific Review, Harvard Asia Pacific Review, Asia-Pacific Social Science Review, Pacific Affairs, Columbia East Asian Review, Journal of Asian Security and International Affairs, Asia Europe Journal, African and Asian Studies, Canadian Foreign Policy Journal, World Affairs, Global Affairs, International Studies, Journal of International Development Studies, Asian Journal of Political Science, Political Studies Review, etc. A winner of outstanding scholarly awards named after Japan's two prime ministers (Yasuhiro Nakasone and Masayoshi Ōhira), Dr Moni has recently given sharp opinions, robust criticisms and useful feedbacks in reviews of books that are authored by some of the world's most established scholars and are produced by the globe's not only largest publishers but also many promising presses. <Email: moni@apigs-edu.net>
